Activity 1: Drawing God's Laws

Instructions:

1. Read or listen to a simplified version of Deuteronomy 23 together with the group.
2. Discuss the laws mentioned in the chapter.
3. Each student will draw a scene that represents one of the laws from the chapter.

Roles:

- Reader: Reads the simplified version aloud.
- Discussion Leader: Guides the group in identifying the different laws.
- Artist: Everyone (each student is responsible for creating their own drawing).

Discussion Prompts:

- What are some kinds of laws mentioned?
- Why do you think these laws were important?
- How might these laws help people live together more peacefully?

Active Participation:

- Each student shares their drawing with the group and explains why they chose that specific law.

Activity 2: Role-Play the Rules

Instructions:

1. Choose a law from Deuteronomy 23 and understand it as a group.
2. Create a short skit where each student acts out a scenario that illustrates the law.

Roles:

- Director: Guides the group in creating the skit.
- Actors: All students participate as actors, each taking on different roles.
- Narrator: Provides context and describes the scene to the audience.

Discussion Prompts:

- How did you feel acting out this rule?
- What do you think is the main message of this law?
- How can we apply these teachings in our own lives?

Active Participation:

- Each student acts out a part, and after the skit, everyone discusses what they learned from it.

Activity 3: Sharing Circle

Instructions:

1. Form a circle and read a story or situation that parallels a law from Deuteronomy 23.
2. Each student shares their thoughts or similar experiences related to the story or law.

Roles:

- Storyteller: Reads or shares the story.
- Facilitator: Encourages each student to share their perspectives.

- Reflective Contributor: Everyone shares their thoughts.

Discussion Prompts:

- What did the story teach us about following rules?
- Have you ever been in a situation where following a rule helped you?
- Why do you think rules are important in communities?

Active Participation:

- Every student shares their perspective or personal story, ensuring a supportive and open environment for sharing.
